Dear Mr. Neelery

1:06cv 02-DRB

I am currently living with my seventy eight year old Mother. When my Father became sick in 1998, I took a leave of absence of three months from my work to help my parents. At the end of the three months I decided to quit my job to continue to help my parents as both of my parents were under a lot of stress due to my Father's illness.

My Father passed away in July 2003. I decided I would continue to live with my Mother a few more months and then return to Atlanta Ga. and resume work. As it has turned out, I am still living with my Mother. During the summer of 2005 my Mother collapsed from a bleeding ulcer. While being taken to the hospital in an ambulance, the paramedics ~~were~~ were unable to get a blood pressure reading from my Mother. If I was not here she probably would have died. As weak as she was, I do not think she could have made it to a telephone to call 911.

My Mother often uses a cane to help her get around, she also had to ask her doctor for a disabled parking tag so the car can be parked close to the entrance of the stores of which she shops.

I would rather be living and working in Atlanta. But I want my Mother to have the highest quality of life she can have and from what I have seen my Mother cannot have that living alone.

I was unable to graduate from Life Chiropractic College and was never able to earn much money. When I was working I paid as much as I could towards my student loan debt. As I am not working now, I am unable to make any payments toward my debt, which I feel very bad about. If I had any money I would be making payments toward my student loan debt. As soon as I have some money I will resume payments toward my student loan debt.

Sincerely,

Alon Patterson Jr.
